"Visitors can also read and understand more about Mitsui's expertise and depth in certain industries and materials such as aerospace, energy and hard metal applications," said a company spokesperson.

Other features include quick links to events, latest videos and the company's YouTube and other social media channels accessed from the home page.

There is also background information about the company and its facility that was designed and built to produce machine tools that are engineered to be among the most accurate in the world. The ways in which Mitsui Seiki achieves its volumetric accuracy are also explained. Visitors can also sign up for the company's newsletter and request a quote on the new site.
